They Marry Young,

"When a boy reaches the age of fifteen or sixteen years he marries a girl of about the same age, or a year younger says Mr. Stefansson. "There is no ceremony in this union, and it is seldom a permanent one. Cases are rare where couples first united have remained to gether. It is sometimes the second, and generally the third union, which proves

"This last marriage usually takes pla when the couple reaches young manhood and womanhood, and its ties are rarely if ever, broken. If a couple, upon first mating, for any reason proves uncongenial, the one wishing to do so, simply marries some one else,

There are no hard feelings, and there neither party has cause for complaint.

"A peculiar feature of these matches is the fact that young couples are as a rule not very affectionate, which is a peculiar contrast, as when permanently settled, and reaching the age of from twenty-five to thirty-five, they become affectionate and loving in the extreme, and never unnecessarily leave one another's side.
